

Personal Statement

I am a recent graduate with a First in Law (with Spanish Law) from the University of Sheffield. I am a confident and highly organised individual; these being skills I developed through hosting socials and events during my time on the LGBT+ society committee at Sheffield. My excellent research and analytical skills have been enhanced through my active participation in philosophical forums, and through my research essays during my degree. Along with these skills, I am able to communicate effectively due to my experience interacting and working with non-English speaking individuals. I currently have an intermediate level of Spanish and I continue to develop my Spanish language skills. I am looking to start my career in the dynamic world of law and I aim to gain practical legal skills in addition to developing a higher level of commercial awareness

A project which involved researching a contemporary human rights issue and giving a timed advocacy speech to a fictitious "Human Rights Council", in front of an audience of 70 people. NGO reports were used to research and draw conclusions about human rights issues in Bangladesh and the United States. I then offered practical solutions to resolve these issues

Internal Mooting Competition (2019)

An internal moot at the University of Sheffield, where we worked in teams on a contract dispute. I used Westlaw research cases and find authorities for my argument. I formulated a concise argument and gave a timed, five-minute, oral submission
